

STACY A. GOFF, PMP

STACY A. GOFF is president of ProjectExperts, a Project Management consulting, tools and training company. A Project Management practitioner since 1970 and consultant since 1982, he can improve Enterprise or workgroup project productivity, timeliness and effectiveness.

A dynamic speaker, Mr. Goff provides Project consulting services, and presents workshops of great interest to executives, managers, project leaders, and individual contributors. His audiences include Information Technology, Aerospace, Government, Finance, Insurance, Manufacturing and Pharmaceutical organizations.

Mr. Goff's professional affiliations include long-time membership and certified Project Management Professional (PMP®) with the Project Management Institute, and a founder, Education Director and Vice President of asapm, the American Society for the Advancement of Project Management. And as a consultant to large, medium and small Consultancies, his unique methods have influenced tens of thousands of project managers and their projects.

His methods support any organization's need for more effective Project Management, from better cost and time control to regulatory requirements, to improved quality. He published THE Guide, a methodology for high-risk Information Technology projects, MinProj®, an enterprise-wide Minimum Project Management method, and The Small Project Guide, a universal small project management approach.

His Project Management tools and methods have been used by enterprises and consultancies on at least four continents. His KnowRisk® and Quest For Better Estimates® tools provide powerful management methods in an easy-to-use format. His Project Management Competency Model supports the industry's newest Project Manager Certification, aCPM, asapm Certified Project Manager. This certification is unique because it evaluates a Project Manager's competence, not just Project Management general knowledge.

Mr. Goff brings a results-oriented approach to consulting. His passion for strategic fit and excitement for results translate to high-quality, on-time, in budget project performance. In his workshops or in consulting, he combines his knowledge of project management with sensitivity for the human aspects of projects. The result: Increased project success.
